Set for a bullish triangle breakout amid Dec seasonality and Fed-cut optimism

MARKET REVIEW

Asia. Asian of Friday's PCE print and the 10 Dec FOMC meeting, most Asian markets ended mixed as investors took profits after recent Fed-cut-driven rallies. The Nikkei 225 (+2.33%) outperformed, lifted by technology names. Fanuc jumped 13% after announcing a partnership with Nvidia to develop industrial robots, overshadowing lingering concerns of a potential rate hike at the 19 Dec BOJ meeting.

US. Ahead of a delayed PCE print tonight, Wall St ended mixed (S&P 500: +0.11%, Nasdaq: +0.22%, Dow: -0.07%) as investors looked toward the 10 Dec FOMC meeting and parsed mixed labour data that kept markets heavily pricing a 25 bps cut. ADP reported a surprise 32,000 drop in private payrolls and Challenger announced 71,321 layoffs in November, while the 4-week average of initial jobless claims fell to 214k, a 10-month low. Meanwhile, the 10-year UST yield rose 3 bps to 4.1% as markets reassessed the Fed's longer-term rate path amid lingering concerns that sticky inflation could limit the scope for cuts into 2026.

Malaysia. Tracking the region's cautious tone, the KLCI slipped 1.8 pts to 1,621.1, dragged by profit taking in utilities and banking heavyweights. Market breadth was negative, with decliners outpacing advancers 463 to 458, while turnover jumped to 4.48bn shares (+36.5%) worth RM2.75bn (+19.5%). Foreign investors returned as net sellers after net buying RM263m over the previous three consecutive session (-RM80m; Dec MTD: +RM183m; YTD: -RM20.1bn). In contrast, local institutions (+RM59m; Dec MTD: -RM47m; YTD: +RM19.66bn) and retailers (+RM21m; Dec MTD: -RM136m; YTD: +RM440m) emerged as the major net buyers.

OUTLOOK

In the near term, the KLCI is likely to drift sideways as investors await the upcoming Fed and BOJ meetings while digesting the lingering China-Japan diplomatic tensions and the potential cabinet reshuffle after the 29 Nov Sabah polls.

Overall, any dips should find solid support at 1,591–1,600, backed by firm fundamentals, undemanding valuations and favourable December seasonality. This keeps the door open for a potential retest of the 1,643–1,659 resistance zone after consecutive monthly declines in Oct (-2.7 pts) and Nov (-4.7 pts).

Key catalysts include:

- Stronger macro momentum. Jan-Sep approved investments rose 12% YoY to RM285.2bn, while GDP growth of 4.5–4.1% projected for 2025–26 is backed by major drivers: VMY 2026, the New Industrial Master Plan 2030, the National Energy Transition Roadmap, the National Semiconductor Strategy, and regional EV-hub ambitions.
- Room for catch-up. A firmer ringgit (+8% YTD) and an undemanding CY2026 KLCI P/E of 14.0x (vs. the 5-year average of 17.2x) support laggard upside, alongside CY2025/26 earnings growth of +2.6%/+7.6%.
- Light foreign positioning. Foreign shareholding remains near historical low at 19% in Nov (vs Sep/Oct: 18.7%/18.8%), with YTD outflows of -RM20.1bn but steady institutional (+RM19.6bn) and retail (+RM440m) inflows continue to anchor the market.
- December seasonality. Historically supportive, with average returns of 2.1%/2.0% over the past 10/20 years, aided by window-dressing flows.

Technical view: Pending a triangle breakout

Despite near-term volatility, we stay constructive on the KLCI, which is nearing a bullish triangle breakout backed by strong December seasonality and rising Fed-cut optimism. A sustained close above 1,643 would pave the way for a retest of 1,659 and 1,686 (110% FE). Failure to break this threshold may keep the index in consolidation, with supports at 1,600 and 1,591 (100-day MA).
